LOCATION

Just off Highway 72 at Forsyth Reservoir, Fishlake National Forest.

TRAIL DESCRIPTION

A well-maintained dirt path climbing through aspen, juniper, and spruce around the base of Geyser Peak, with sweeping eastern views over Cathedral Valley, the San Rafael Swell, and the Manti-La Sal Mountains.

DIFFICULTY NOTES

A low-stress ride for younger riders or a relaxing afternoon.

KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

Strict 50-inch width restrictions at several forest gates; dogs allowed; no fees. High-elevation route — often snow-covered and impassable in winter/early spring; check current conditions before you go. Pack out everything you pack in. Flash floods can hit canyons fast from distant storms — check the forecast first.

EQUIPMENT

ATVs and narrow Side-by-Sides only; 50-inch width maximum at forest gates.

COORDINATES

38.52111, -111.52694 (Staging area)

Coordinates are a navigation aid — conditions change, so always verify current road and trail status before you go.

SAFETY

Download offline map; check weather forecasts; carry physical map and first aid kit.

TRAIL TIP

The views east toward the San Rafael Swell are some of the best on any trail in the county.
